

Conversations with the Community Sponsored by UNCG's African American Studies Program

Tuesday, Sept 13th, 2011

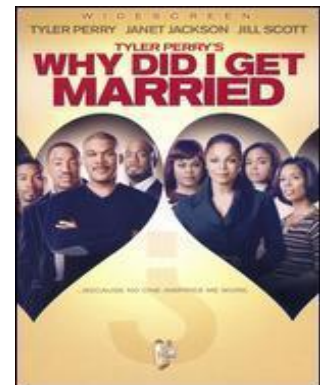

6:00-7:30 pm

EUC, Kirkland Room

Still in Love and in Trouble: Examining Gender Norms and Violence in Tyler Perry's Romantic Comedic Films

Discussion led by:

Dr. Cerise L. Glenn

Contact afs@uncg.edu for more information

Cerise L. Glenn is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Communication Studies at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. She is also an affiliate faculty member of the African American Studies program. Her research interests center on social constructions of difference (diversity), particularly identity negotiation and representations of underrepresented groups in organizational and mass-mediated contexts. She earned her doctorate in Intercultural Communication at Howard University and her Master's of Science in Organizational Communication from North Carolina State University.