

UPDATE ON OUR SCHOLARS

Peter DelGobbo Class of 2012

Currently working to finish up his English major and Spanish minor, Peter is preparing for early graduation in December. He writes, "This semester is my busiest yet as I am studying for two GRE exams: the general exam but also the English literature test as well. These results will be submitted with my application to various graduate English departments up and down the east coast. And of course, there's my senior thesis, a 30-50 page research paper about the possible intersections of political and literary theory. These are all daunting tasks, but I'm excited to rise to the challenge."

Hannah Bowling Class of 2014

"Near the end of last semester, I declared a second major in Computer Science and was given the opportunity to join STARS Alliance, an organization dedicated to increasing the participation of women, minorities, and people with disabilities in computing fields (www.starsalliance.org). I attended a conference over the summer with the UNCG STARS group, and throughout the year we will be doing outreach to local students. I'm dancing for a graduate student again this semester, as well as staying involved with Cru (formerly Campus Crusade for Christ). It's nice to be back on campus and back in class."

Jordan Hart Class of 2014

Continuing with a BA in Music as his goal, Jordan writes, "I've begun my sophomore year with a schedule as full and exciting as last year's, if not more! In addition to my piano studies and participation in the Men's Glee ensemble, I've just been accepted into the UNCG Chariots, and am looking forward to being a part of this great a cappella group! Over the summer I started a monthly coffeehouse-style variety show at my church to showcase all kinds of local talent. These shows have taken off as a community event. Between hosting these talent shows, staying active in church music, and keeping up with my studies, I'm anticipating a busy and rewarding school year!"
