

Chemical Patent Practice

Abstract

Protection of intellectual property remains important both in industry and academia. This seminar will give attendees a patent practitioner's perspective on the chemical discovery industry; expand their patent knowledge and vocabulary; and emphasize the importance of the patent claim. The discussion will include an introduction to the parts of a patent application; a summary of the legal requirements for patentability; and an application of the patent laws to a hypothetical chemical invention scenario.