

Download Instructions for Mediation Files

The following zipped file contains SPSS and SAS data sets and programming as well as various supporting MS Word files.

It will be easiest to run the example file if you save the Mediation.zip file onto a floppy (in the a: drive). Then when extracting the file make sure that you instruct the zip program to create subfolders.

The folder structure of you're a:drive should look as follows:

However, this structure is only required if you want to run the syntax as written for the example. You will eventually want to move the program to your hard drive and modify it to point to your data files.
