Graduate Assistantships in Kinesiology

Assistantship opportunities for graduate students in the Department of Kinesiology (KIN) include teaching assistantships, research assistantships and clinical assistantships. A description of each follows below. If you are interested in being considered for graduate assistantship funding, complete and return the attached application. Assistantships will be awarded based on the information contained in this application as well as the candidate's academic credentials (GPA, GRE Scores) and KIN application materials (resume, references, goal statement). To insure full consideration, all materials (including this application) must be received no later than January 15th. To be eligible for any type of assistantship, graduate students must be unconditionally admitted to a graduate degree program in KIN, be enrolled full-time in the graduate school (a minimum of 6 credit hours per term), and demonstrate a clear record of progress toward degree completion. New students must have earned a grade point average of 3.0 or higher in their previous academic program. All students awarded an assistantship must maintain a grade point average of 3.0 or higher.

Teaching Assistant (TA): The department funds several teaching assistantships each year. Responsibilities typically involve teaching sport and exercise activity classes (see listings later in this application). Advanced students may also assist with the instruction of undergraduate theory courses.

Research Assistant (RA): Research assistantships are subject to available funding. Responsibilities center on helping faculty to pursue their research. Duties vary greatly depending on faculty interests and expertise, but may include subject recruitment, data collection and reduction, computer entry and analyses, literature searches, and teaching of laboratory sections in undergraduate courses. For more information on research assistantships in your area of interest, please contact faculty members directly.

Graduate Clinical Assistantships (GA): Clinical assistantships include opportunities both within and outside the department. For more information on these opportunities, as well as application instructions, please access the contact information below.

Athletic Training: Graduate assistant athletic training positions are funded through UNCG athletics and surrounding universities. Eligible candidates must be board certified athletic trainers in good standing. For information on available assistantships each Fall, please visit <http://www.uncg.edu/kin/anrl/MSProg.html>.

HOPE (Helping Older People Exercise): Eligible candidates must hold credentials as an NSCA Certified Strength and Conditioning Specialists or ACSM Health Fitness Instructor (or higher). For further information contact Cody Sipe clsipe@uncg.edu or visit <http://www.uncg.edu/kin/hope/>

Office of Campus Recreation: For further information contact Campus Recreation, 336-334-5924.
