Jennifer Tomon is Assistant Director of the SAC in the School of Education at UNCG. As the Secondary Advisor, Tomon serves the students majoring in secondary education in the areas of English, comprehensive social studies, comprehensive science, mathematics, and foreign language (French and Spanish) and classical studies (Latin).

Tomon graduated from the North Carolina State University (NCSU) in 2008 with a Master of Science degree in Counselor Education, with a concentration in college counseling. While at NCSU, Tomon served as a graduate intern, providing counseling and advising services to the students in the Academic Support Program for Student-Athletes. In 2003, Tomon graduated from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Education with a second major in Psychology. After graduation, Tomon spent the next four years teaching middle school Language Arts and Social Studies and coaching in the Orange County Schools (NC), where she worked with students of all academic and social abilities and backgrounds. Along with a NC teaching license, Tomon currently holds a credential as a National Certified Counselor and receives consistent on-site supervision as well as supervision by a trained counseling professional. Tomon is currently pursuing licensure as a Professional Counselor in North Carolina.

In her spare time, Tomon enjoys spending time with her loved ones, participating in athletic events, and cheering her undergraduate alma mater on to victory. Tomon currently resides in Hillsborough, NC.
