

Hello, my name is Leroy and I am a sophomore Teaching Fellow here at UNCG.

And the benefits of Teaching Fellows - you get experiences that other people just don't get. You get into the schools early and that allows you to feel around to see what area you are interested in.

This allows you to expand your horizons more beyond what the School of Education already gives you. And so it is a great opportunity to get to meet people and travel across the state.

And I love it
