'Don't Just Live, Lead'

Inspirational words for 2,200 new graduates

Outgoing chancellor Patricia A. Sullivan was held up as a role model at Friday's commencement at the Greensboro Coliseum.

Tom Ross, president of Davidson College and former UNCG trustee, delivered the address.

Ross told the graduates: "Be what Chancellor Pat Sullivan is – an effective, positive leader. She chooses to do so much more than just live. She seizes the opportunity to make a difference, to serve and to lead for the common good. So today, as you accept the diploma you have worked these years to earn, I urge you to hear these words if you hear no others today: Don't just live, lead."

He encouraged graduates to:

- Know yourself. "To be an effective leader I believe you must first spend some time understanding who you are and what you bring to the table. Evaluate your own strengths and weaknesses; identify your skills, abilities and interests; discern your passions; reflect on your behavior; accept guidance and supervision; and learn from experiences."

- Care for yourself. "Effective leaders understand the need for balance in their lives ... They understand they must be able to manage themselves before they can manage others."

- Clarify your values. "The most effective leaders I know have personal belief systems that require them to care about more than themselves ... People must believe in you and trust your motives if they are to be expected to follow the direction you propose."

- Appreciate and embrace difference. "The best leaders are those who not only understand and respect, but cherish and celebrate the differences that exist among those they lead as they steer them toward common goals and directions."

- Seek talent. "Great leaders surround themselves with talented people. Leaders who are confident in their own ability to lead and who want the best outcomes, relish the opportunity to consult with talented people who challenge their thinking and offer contrary opinions."

- Take a risk. "You are better prepared for the diverse, changing, global world of tomorrow than most of the other people in the world today. You have what it takes to be competitive and you are positioned to do well."

Paris Lofaro, Class of 2008 speaker, implored her classmates not to be discouraged by adversity, tempted by mediocrity or seduced by popularity.

"Go forth in boldness," she said. "Believe in yourself and more than yourself because faith brings wondrous things. Eleanor Roosevelt said that 'the future belongs to those who believe in the beauty of their dreams.'"

Finalists Selected

New chancellor to be named mid-June

The UNCG Chancellor Search Committee has selected finalists for the chancellor position and has passed these names to President Bowles.

The new UNCG chancellor is expected to be elected and named when the system's Board of Governors meets June 12-13.

Summer Massages

The massage therapists at The Wellness Center will be working over the summer.

Visit www.uncg.edu/shs/services/massage for information about therapists and pricing. Summer hours are 8 a.m. until 5:30 p.m.

Massage therapy is the manipulation of muscles and other soft tissue to reduce stress, tension and anxiety, as well as promote a feeling of general well-being. Modern massage techniques draw from Eastern and Western healing traditions.

'Thanks PAS'

Saluting Chancellor Patricia A. Sullivan

With everyone wearing a "I ♥ PAS" or "Thanks PAS" button, the campus community honored Chancellor Patricia A. Sullivan at a reception May 13 in EUC's Cone Ballroom. She will step down July 31.

Speakers were former SGA president Marsha Jonae Wartel; Staff Senate Chair Suzanne Williams; Faculty Senate Chair Kathryn M. Crowe; Provost David H. Perrin; Alumni Association President Betsy Ervin; Associate Provost for Enrollment Services Cynthia Farris; WFMY Corporation's Shirley Frye; Trustees Chair Stephen C. Hassenfelt; and Vice Chancellor for University Advancement Patricia W. Stewart.

Dr. John Salmon provided a special musical performance. His second number, Ellington's "Things Ain't What They Used to Be," was a comment on the progress UNCG has made under her leadership, he said.

Each speaker gave heartfelt best wishes and shared stories.

Stewart, who presented Sullivan with a UNCG university chair, shared that the current campaign's name originated with the chancellor, who'd said, "It has to be 'students first,' of course."

Perrin asked if she were a "Star Trek" fan. The chancellor smiled and nodded. He then suggested that a "mind meld" would be a welcome idea – "transferring all you know about this wonderful university." It drew the biggest laugh of the event.

Crowe spoke about Sullivan promoting the campus' culture of shared governance and transparency, "now an integral part of our culture."

"I don't know what to say except 'Thank you,'" the chancellor said, after shaking hands with each person who'd spoken.

She shared a few stories from her years as chancellor and related the advice she'd given to the chancellor candidates: "Let the campus environment touch you. Let it reach both your heart and mind. And then begin to take action."

She continued, "I hope that this wonderful campus climate that you all have created will help the new chancellor bring UNCG to even higher levels of achievement than we've done in the past several years. Because your new leader will bring you lots of ideas and talents and enthusiasm. And I know that you will welcome that leader with open arms – and off you go, to new frontiers."

Sullivan received a standing ovation.

Cram & Scram Sale

Everything is 50¢ May 28-29

Most of the students have departed. What they left behind may be just the items you've been looking for.

It's the annual rummage sale called "Cram & Scram," in EUC's Cone Ballroom. Each item is priced at 50 cents.

The sale is

- Wednesday, May 28 - 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.
- Thursday, May 29 - 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

With bargains to be had and items to be saved from the landfill, it's a popular sale.

Last year, the line stretched from Cone Ballroom all the way to the front door of the EUC by the time the doors opened, says Ben Kunka, Office of Waste Reduction & Recycling.

Teaching Awards

Faculty members have received awards for teaching excellence for the 2007-08 year.

Each of the winners received a cash award during events in April, May or at ceremonies over the May 16-17 commencement weekend. Funding for the awards is provided by UNC General Administration, which allocates money for all 17 campuses in the UNC system to reward faculty members for excellence in teaching within their academic colleges and professional schools. The winners are:

- College of Arts and Sciences, Dr. Matina Kalcounis-Ruppell, Department of Biology, and Dr. Jan Rychtar, Mathematics & Statistics.
- School of Education, Dr. Kelly Wester, Department of Counseling/Educational Development, and Dr. Heidi Carlone, Department of Curriculum and Instruction.
- School of Health and Human Performance, Dr. David Cardenas, Department of Recreation, Tourism & Hospitality Management.
- School of Nursing, Dr. Lois VonCannon, Department of Community Practice.
- School of Human Environmental Sciences, Dr. Susan Dennison, Department of Social Work.
- Bryan School of Business and Economics, Dr. William Harden, Department of Accounting & Finance, and Dr. Nir B. Kshteri, Department of Business Administration.
- School of Music, Dr. Gavin Douglas.

Three Athletics Programs Fall Short

Three athletic teams fell short of the required score in the NCAA's Academic Progress Report (APR).

The university will face scholarship reductions in the sports of men's baseball, men's basketball and men's track and field. The matter has been addressed, with improvement plans already in place for the programs. All totaled, the reduction will be 2.1 scholarships of the 110 that UNCG awards across its athletics program.

On the flip side, nine UNCG squads had perfect APR scores in the 2006-07 academic year. Five programs had perfect multi-year scores (1000) in the eligibility-graduation category, but lost points in the category of retention – meaning those student-athletes were in good academic standing and chose to transfer.

Last month, UNCG's women's basketball and women's tennis programs were among 712 teams that were honored by the NCAA for having perfect historical APR scores. There are 6,212 teams competing at the Division I level this season.

"We understand where we are in this process and understand that we aren't alone in this either," said Director of Athletics Nelson E. Bobb. "We have several teams that are doing very well in the APR and we are quite proud of that fact. We also have those that have shortcomings, and that has been addressed and will continue to be."

Provost David H. Perrin

Dr. Albert N. Link

Noah Davis

Provost David H. Perrin has been named to a three-year appointment on a national committee of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. He will serve on the 21-member Advisory Committee on Interdisciplinary, Community-Based Linkages of the Human Resources and Services Administration, and will represent the allied health area. The committee was created by Congress to review programs that support interdisciplinary, community-based training as part of the goals of the Health Resources and Services Administration and the Bureau of Health Professions. It advises the Secretary of HHS and Congress on programs concerning area health education centers, health education training centers, and the Burdick Program for Rural Interdisciplinary Training, as well as programs in geriatrics, allied health, chiropractic and podiatric medicine.

A new book co-authored by Dr. Albert N. Link (Bryan School) explores the role businesses and governments can play to ensure that dangerous data security breaches are avoided. The book, "Cyber Security: Economic Strategies and Public Policy Alternatives" published by Edward Elgar Publishing, provides the first systematic analysis of the economics of protecting cyberspace.

Noah Davis (Theatre) has an article in April's LEDs Magazine. It is devoted to changes to the state of theatrical lighting systems, as that industry enters a new era.

Window Treatments

Foust Building is undergoing window restoration. Work will soon be completed on the southeastern front windows. The rest of the building's windows will be restored in the coming weeks. Most of the windows' glass is being reinstalled. Glass that is damaged is being replaced with antique glass from salvaged buildings.

Workshop on Preventing Identity Theft

According to the Federal Trade Commission, identity theft is the fastest growing crime in America. With more than 300,000 identity theft victims reported in North Carolina alone last year, what can you do to reduce the risk to yourself and to those at UNCG?

Join Certified Identity Theft Risk Management Specialist Roy Davenport, of Shred-it, to find out what you can do to help prevent identity theft. The workshop will be Tuesday, June 3, from 10-11:30 a.m. in Sullivan Science Building, Room 201.

Contact Records Officer Barbara Tookey for more information or to RSVP for this workshop at bstookey@uncg.edu or 4-3111. Seating is limited.

Shred-a-Thon

Shred-it will be partnering with UNCG to offer a campus-wide "Shred-a-Thon" Thursday, July 24, 8 a.m.-noon in the EUC Circle. Watch for more details about the Summer 2008 "UNCG Cleanout" initiative.

Campus Weekly will not publish next week. Summer publication dates are June 4, June 18, July 2, July 16 and July 30. Weekly publication will resume Aug. 13.

Jerome Lowenthal

Piano Symposium

Celebrates 1920s Paris June 5-7

At the close of World War I, all of Europe agreed that Paris was the place in which to drown the anguish of the war years in a mélange of music, theater, dance, poetry, cabaret and abandon.

Evoking this glamorous decade, Focus on Piano Literature, UNCG's bi-annual symposium consisting of concerts and lectures, will conjure the spirit of Paris Thursday to Saturday, June 5-7, at the School of Music.

Virtuoso pianist and veteran Juilliard School faculty member Jerome Lowenthal; soprano Hope Koehler; Brazilian-born artist/flutist Tadeu Coelho; and author, jazz pianist and alumnus Keith Waters will be among the 21 special guests and presenters.

"For the first time we will have lectures from faculty from art, theatre, dance, French and English," said Dr. Andrew Willis, director of the symposium and professor of piano. "The concept of collaboration across the disciplines is marvelously exciting."

Professor of piano Dr. John Salmon, who founded the symposium 18 year ago, will deliver the lecture "Daniel Ericourt: UNCG's Link to Paris in the 1920s" and perform some of Ericourt's compositions at 11 a.m. Thursday, June 5.

From 1964 to 1967, Ericourt was UNCG's first artist-in-residence at the School of Music. While at UNCG he hosted "The Ericourt Forum of Music and Arts," a popular television show. "Ericourt lived in Paris during the 1920s, so he was UNCG's link to that era," said Willis.

Jean Cocteau's farcical ballet "Le Boeuf sur le Toit" ("The Nothing Doing Bar") will be performed at 8 p.m. Friday, June 6. To re-create Cocteau's magical setting, artist Fritz Janschka designed a surrealistic replica of a typical 1920s Parisian bar. Period dance forms such as the Charleston, Cakewalk and the Apache will be performed by students from the departments of Dance and Theatre. "Le Boeuf's" jazz score, written by prolific French composer Darius Milhaud, will be performed by Salmon and Willis.

A tour of the Weatherspoon Art Museum's collection of works from Picasso and Matisse – artists who worked in Paris during the 1920s – will be offered at 10:45 a.m. Saturday, June 7 for those registered for the symposium.

Registration for the symposium is $135 before May 22; $145 after. Student prices are $90 prior to May 22; $100 after. Separate fees are charged for the Friday banquet and Saturday luncheon.

Alumni Association's New Officers

Jeffrey Colbert, lecturer in the political science department, has been elected president of the UNCG Alumni Association. Colbert, who graduated in 1984 with a degree in political science and earned a master of public affairs degree in 1986, is only the second male president in the history of the Alumni Association.

Other new officers, who will serve year-long terms, include:

- Jana Wagenseller '76, of Durham; president elect
 - Daniel Todd "J.J." McEachern '00, '02 MEd, of Charlotte; vice-president
 - Myra McIver '00, of Charlotte; secretary
 - Judy Garner '71, of Trinity; treasurer
- New members of the board of directors are:
- Erica Chambers '00, of Burlington
 - Herb Everett '00, of Greensboro
 - Marie Harrill '60, of Winston-Salem
 - David Jobe '87, of Greensboro
 - Sharron Kurtz '89, of Whitsett
 - Megan Metzger '05, of Winston-Salem
 - Sue Weant '59, of Lexington, Ky
 - Tomika Williams, '03 MSN, of Greensboro

Friday's commencement at the Greensboro Coliseum was a happy day for the university's approximately 2,200 new graduates – and their families and friends.

Project Green Leaf Nets Over $14,000 at Springsteen Show

Support and recognition by rock legend Bruce Springsteen has added some "green" to UNCG's Project Green Leaf – over $14,000.

Springsteen and the E Street Band performed in Greensboro April 28 and PGL was picked as one of two local charities to benefit. The traditional "Pass the Bucket" fundraiser that is conducted at each of his concerts provided $861. The tour also provided PGL with two pair of VIP tickets which were auctioned on the Charity Folks web site for $3,900.

But the big surprise was a $10,000 anonymous gift, and PGL Director

Dr. Susan Andreatta says she has no idea who made it (but suspects that it might have come from The Boss – Springsteen).

Andreatta commented that she "was so very grateful to Bruce Springsteen for his incredible generosity and for having selected UNCG-Project Green Leaf as one of the evening's community groups to attend the concert and receive donations from his fans." She said, "It is amazing how his words of encouragement to those in attendance to support UNCG-Project Green Leaf and Urban Ministry provided an opportunity for people to gain awareness of the organizations' activities and generously fill the buckets."

She is grateful for the contributions and hopes that individuals will find ways to participate in the local agro-food system by shopping for North Carolina products, including produce, meats and seafood.

Since receiving these gifts, Andreatta has contacted several small-farmers and has begun an apprenticeship program. She is working with some of her students interested in getting firsthand experience on-farm and at farmers' markets. She recognizes that the existing farming population has few young people in it. It is her hope that she is helping to train future farmers and growers who will help sustain a local agriculture and food system for years to come.

Project Green Leaf was listed as a "community connection" on the World Hunger Year web site, which was founded in 1975 and drew support from singer Harry Chapin. The Springsteen tour picked up on it. PGL is the ideal charity Springsteen likes to support – a non-profit organization where people are helping themselves improve their daily lives.

The project's mission is to promote and support a local agro-food system. Project Green Leaf is dedicated to sustaining local agriculture by strengthening community between farmers and consumers, thus providing for better quality of living. By promoting various activities, such as direct marketing and educational/outreach programs, PGL assists in developing the connections necessary for a local agro-food system.
