Computational Implicature:
Computational Approaches to Interpreting and Generating Conversational Implicature

AAAI Spring Symposium
Stanford University
March 25-27, 1996

Contents

Conversational Implicatures and Lexical Pragmatics
Reinhard Blutner, Annette Leßmöllmann, and Rob van der Sandt

Pragmatic Processes of 'Completion', 'Enrichment' and 'Loosening', and the Role of Relevance
Robyn Carston

The Role of the Gricean Maxims in the Generation of Referring Expressions
Robert Dale and Ehud Reiter

Grice’s Maxims: "Do the Right Thing”
Robert E. Frederking

Goals for Future Computational Models of Conversational Implicature
Nancy Green and Jill Fain Lehman

Testing Gricean Constraints on a WordNet-based Coherence Evaluation System
Sanda M. Harabagiu, Dan I. Moldovan, and Takashi Yukawa

Commonalities and Differences in two Approaches dealing with Conversational Implicature
Helmut Horacek

Toward a Formal Account of Context-Dependency and Underspecificity of Natural Language
Lucja Iwańska

Conversational Conventions and Processing Considerations
Aravind K. Joshi

The Role of Gricean Implicature in Computational Models of Speech Acts
Amichai Kronfeld
Detecting Pragmatic Infelicities
Daniel Marcu and Graeme Hirst

Sorting Out the Inventory
Mayumi Masuko

Issues in Cue Phrase Implicature
Jon Oberlander and Alistair Knott

Active Logic Applied to Cancellation of Gricean Implicature
Khemdut Purang, Don Perlis, and John Gurney

Information Structure, Plans, and Implicature
Craige Roberts

Computing the Implicatures carried by "the φ"
Kjetil Strand

In Defense of Semantics: Scalar Inferences as Topic-Dependent Entailments
Jan van Kuppevelt

Inferring Rejection by Default Rules of Inference
Marilyn A. Walker

Discourse Plans, Intended Effects and the Generation of Implicatures
R. Michael Young
